Phu Quoc Island is perhaps most famous for its endless coastline of white sand beaches, but the diversity of experiences possible on the island makes it an ideal vacation destination for both domestic and international tourists.

With 150 kilometers of coastline, you can spend every day in Phu Quoc Island on a different beach. The beaches are beautiful on their own, but the ocean around Phu Quoc Island has its own appeal. The water here is calm as bathwater and clear as green glass.

Many of the islands in the archipelago are ringed by a dense and thriving system of coral reefs, both soft and rigid hard varieties. The pristine, transparent water is as good as a window into that aquatic world of vibrant color, making Phu Quoc Island one of the best places in Vietnam to try water sports and underwater activities like snorkeling and diving.

Covering an area of 567 square kilometers and home to 180,000 people, Phu Quoc is the largest island in Vietnam and the nation's first island city. As if there wasn't enough to do on Phu Quoc Island itself, there are 21 other islands in the Phu Quoc archipelago, each with its personality and unique ecosystem. Because many of them are entirely uninhabited, these islands are some of the places to find nature.

Phu Quoc has been named "World's Leading Nature Island Destination 2022". World Travel Awards, has been called the "travel industry's equivalent of the Oscars" by The Wall Street Journal, announced on its website.

This special package includes Vietnam Airlines return international + transit domestic economy-class airfare, 8 nights optional accommodation (4/ 5 stars) and daily breakfast at hotel.
